whose smile, wit, and helpful cooperation, will ever remain in the memory of every student who knew him we dedicate the Stillonian of 1926.
FOREWORD

In the production of the 1926 Stillonian it is our purpose to record events of a happy, busy college year. May it be a worthy link in the great chain of records being forged in each one's life.

ADMINISTRATION
DR. TAYLOR is a man whose very appearance commands respect—a man whose life has been that of service gladly, willingly, and most heroically given.

Before his entering the field of healing in the Osteopathic and Medical World he administered to those who needed him, through the pastorate of his church. Feeling that he could be of greater service to human kind in the capacity of a doctor, he entered his present profession in which he has most conscientiously labored. Success has been his reward.

He has been interested in Still College for many years—interested not as a casual observer but as one who is anxious to make it the school it should be—a school which will graduate men who are destined to be real physicians.

Dr. S. L. Taylor has labored long and diligently. He has laid the ground work for a greater institution so that his efforts shall not have been in vain.
DOUBT very much if the Old Doctor ever knew me at all. I have been in his home, have talked to him often, saw him about the school before he was too feeble to come out, but each time he had anything to say to me some one explained to him that I was the son of Matt Halladay who at one time had a grocery on the west side of the square. The Old Doctor knew both sides of my family quite well, but as for me, I was no more than any other youngster growing up with many others.

At an early age I remember being very much awed by him when I happened to be watching the process of sodding his newly graded front yard. He was under the impression that I was a member of his gang of boys and demanded why I was not working instead of gazing. After I explained that I was not a member of the sod squad he gave me a coin and said "Get to work."

This "Get to work" idea seems to be carried through his life. Those who have been close to him know that he was a man of action. When anything was to be done he was for getting it done soon and well.

He knew anatomy, physiology and all the other subjects so well he had an answer for every question. It was his deep interest and honest belief in Osteopathy that kept him prepared at all times for any emergency.

Nature rules that such men must pass on. They leave us a heritage, a work unfinished. This obligation can only be fulfilled by close application of the same principles that made the Old Doctor the founder of his science—"honest belief" and "Get to work."

mere words cannot portray the personality of our beloved dean. One must know him to appreciate him. We, the students of Des Moines Still College, are extremely fortunate in knowing him as we do and having in him a personal friend. We are fortunate because he is an outstanding character in the science in which we are vitally interested, that of Osteopathy.

Dr. Johnson, by his efforts in Still College, giving so liberally of his most valuable time, has done more than is generally realized, toward putting Osteopathy on a foundation, secure for the future. In being acquainted with him, one is acquainted with a man who understands and appreciates the principles of Osteopathy and a man who is vitally interested in such a great profession.

As time wings its way, we who have studied under him will say "Truly in the sphere of Osteopathy, Dr. Johnson belongs to the Ages."

Historical Sketch

In the summer of 1898 there came to Des Moines a group of people, who were imbued with the desire to spread the gospel of Osteopathy and to choose for that purpose a place which should afford all the advantages necessary. They had decided that two of the essential things could easily be obtained in Des Moines, unlimited clinical material and employment for those who wished to work in order to help meet their expenses. After looking at several pieces of property it was decided to purchase what was then the home of Judge Given and had formerly been the home of Hon. Ret. Clarkson, who was not only associated with the Des Moines Register but was a prominent politician of national reputation. In a way it was historic ground.

There were four lots, the home standing on the west part and the college building was placed on the east. The first year the school was conducted in a reconstructed building just opposite the college grounds. In a few months the cornerstone of the new building was laid and in the fall of the second year a very joyous faculty and student body took possession of the structure, which now houses the Des Moines Still College.

Those who were instrumental in starting this school were Dr. S. S. Still, nephew of the "Old Doctor," Dr. Ella Still, Colonel and Mrs. A. L. Conger, Dr. W. L. Riggs, and Dr. Helm. To this group were soon added many more, who were well known in the osteopathic world, and thus was formed a faculty which ranked among the best. The College was named the Dr. S. S. Still College of Osteopathy. The only one to bear the name of Still. The growth of the institution was phenomenal.

In a short time it absorbed the Milwaukee, Northern, Fargo and Southern colleges of Osteopathy. It was the first college to confer the degree of Doctor of Osteopathy. Up to that time the graduates had been called Diplomates. It is interesting to know that every instructor was a thorough Osteopath and in every class the subject was emphasized. Students learned of the wonders of this science which Dr. A. T. Still had promulgated. They came to learn of Osteopathy and went out into the world to teach people, by their practice how this safe and sane method of treatment could cure after other systems had failed. The number of students increased until it stood second among Osteopathic colleges. In looking through an osteopathic directory, one recognizes the names of many of the graduates of this institution who are now holding high positions in their profession.

Very little was known of Osteopathy in 1898 and we might well have been considered pioneers. It took much work and much money to compel the medical board of Iowa to allow our graduates a license to practice, but we were a determined and enthusiastic body and by the efforts effected through our science were able to rally many friends who worked diligently for our cause. Speaking of the ignorance of people at this time regarding Osteopathy, one man wrote saying that he did not know much about it, but had heard that it did wonderful things and desired that a bottle of it be sent him. Needless to say that it is not dispensed in that manner.

One could write volumes of the early days of this college and then not tell of all the wonderful things accomplished. I should like to name all those who were associated with us but space forbids, suffice it to say that there was never a more enthusiastic band of instructors and if possible a more enthusiastic group of students, all working together for the advancement of the science.

Athletics even then had a place in the college. Many stars were on both gridiron and diamond and many victories came to us along those lines. The good work started in 1898 is still being carried on in the Des Moines Still College. May there be no wavering in faith, may we not lose sight of the fact that we owe much to Dr. A. T. Still, who had this dream which came true and whose benefits we share.

"Who keepeth a dream in his heart shall not fail,
Though his goal seem a world apart,
For the heights he shall scale in the face of the gale
Who keepeth a dream in his heart."

Dr. Ella Still.

Our Gracious Mother has watched, with loving eyes, the growth and development of her many children. She has seen them creep, toddle, stumble and fall. Always has she encouraged when they fell and bid them try again. Her great heart swells with pride when the long goal is reached. She has watched them go forth as men among men—scattered to the four winds.

The time has come and all too soon for the departure of another child. It is with joy and with sorrow that she bids farewell to the class of 1926.

The great professional world stands waiting to receive this timid child. He steps forth faltering, but the Gracious Mother never fears, for he has been tried and not found wanting. He has inherited the courage of the North, the sunshine of the South, the sturdiness of the West, the honest and cooperative spirit of the great open spaces, and the culture of the East.

Many obstacles which at times seemed almost insurmountable have been placed in his pathway but with undaunted courage he moved steadily onward. Neither fire nor flood nor the seeming unscaleable peak “500” deterred him from his purpose.

And now as she places her hand in his and bids him Godspeed, she feels that her efforts have not been in vain—that she is giving to mankind a child whose good works will be felt the world over.

Class of January, 1927

As the door closes upon the departing class of 1926 the Gracious Mother sorrowfully wipes away the tears and turns her loving eyes upon the January Class of 1927, in whom she takes great pride.

This child came to her in January, 1923. She was very frail and delicate. At times, her gracious Mother almost despaired of her life. Day after day she watched the small child struggle with the problems and difficulties that arise in a great school life.

This child was weak but most courageous—confident that work wins everything and trusting in her gracious Mother’s Wisdom, new life and hope was brought into her life. She waxed strong until now she has taken the place of the departing class, in dignity and responsibility. It is to the class of 1927 that the burden of the next school year will fall—may she remember those that have gone before and courageously carry on.

Class of May, 1927

The June class of 1927 now appears on the scene. It is as a rosy-cheeked half-grown lad who comes bounding in and demands an immediate hearing from the Gracious Mother.

His work seems as play these days for he has not realized the responsibility that comes with Seniorhood. It will not be long until he lays aside his playful attitudes and takes on the seriousness that becomes a doctor. The gracious Mother does not worry at the utter lack of responsibility for it is the way of men to put off the evil hour—to let tomorrow take care of itself.

This child looks in the wistful face of the gracious Mother and reads there the ever present encouraging smile. As he reads, he is inspired. This inspiration is ever before him—as the time draws nigh he is there, ready, willing and prepared to take the place that is waiting for the May class of 1927.

THE January class of 1928 has been under the guidance of the Gracious Mother but a short time comparatively speaking. It is a timid child and lacks the self confidence which comes on with time—until now she has been the valet for her elder brothers.

The groundwork of her great undertaking has given her grief and at times has almost discouraged her. She has at last reached the mountain top. She sees the land of her heart's desire. Now she is undaunted, eager, determined and willing—she will take her place and go forth as an honorable child of the Gracious Mother.

The Classes of 1928

The classes of 1928 now present themselves with all the vim and vigor which characterizes the Sophomores. This child, as it were, has been named the Sophomore, not by the all wise Gracious Mother, but by the cynical passer-by, or by the casual observer. His bump of curiosity, in his search for wisdom, has made him the sophomore or wise fool as the word is interpreted.

At his young age it is a bit difficult to determine just what sort of grown-up he will be—at times he is inclined to be stubborn, or a bit selfish—again he may be lacking in the spirit of cooperation. The Gracious Mother does not criticize for she had has too much experience with such children. It is the environment and his natural reaction to it. Soon he will realize that he is one of a large family; his latent talents will come forth and all will be well.
When first we came to old Still College
We thought we had a lot of knowledge.
We mused, to study, is a crime—
Why not just have one grand good time?
And now we've been here most two years,
Our minds are dull, we could shed tears.
What once we thought was all mere bunk
We must know now or we'll all flunk.
If we'd then been not quite so wise
We might now be more learned guys.

The Classes of 1929

A II! HERE is the youngest child of the great family of our Gracious Mother—the classes of 1929. The Freshman class is as a strong, healthy, lovable babe. With the other members of the family he complains bitterly or laughs gleefully, as the case may be, though he does not know as yet what it is all about. He thinks the great school he has entered is a glorious place to be. He has not yet learned the meaning of Osteopathy in its biggest sense. He has never dreamed of the responsibility that is his—of the great future that lies ahead and yet is very near. With patience the Gracious Mother is teaching him the fundamentals of Osteopathy. He has opportunities that were denied his elder brothers. He has the advantage of his being a big strong healthy child. Need the Gracious Mother worry concerning him? Never for a moment. This child bids fair to be her greatest.

The freshmen came, the bunch of Dubs
Think Osteopathy mere rubs.
They came to Still, oh! very green,
Are always heard, though seldom seen.
They think that they are sure real stuff—
Believe they know most quite enough,
They want to learn some good technique,
The harmless coccyx for to tweak.
They think each Prof. don’t teach the dope;
Upon the air his fancies float.
But they’ll get wiser here in school—
They’ll find each Prof. “ain’t no darned fool.”

Student Body

ONE of the speakers appearing at one of the weekly assemblies likened an Osteopathic college to a manufacturing plant whose finished product is Osteopathic Physicians, a high grade, specialized article. In his analogy, the speaker brought out the fact that to secure the ultimate degree of perfection desired, only the best available raw material could be used. This raw material is the student body.

D. M. S. C. O. has always been justly proud of the high type of students that has made up this important factor in the college. The average individual who matriculates in D. M. S. C. O. is keen, wide-awake, progressive, full of initiative and thoroughly sold on Osteopathy. Their sincerity is evidenced by the fact that over 95 per cent of the entire student body are earning at least a portion of their expenses by part-time work during the school year.

It is of interest to note the source of this “raw material”:

ORGANIZATIONS
EVERY wide-awake organization has a publication of its own. Des Moines Still College is no exception to the rule. Her College paper is the Log Book. It is so named because it is a prologue, an epilogue, a catalogue and an analogue of activities which take place. In other words, it chronicles all the items of interest pertaining to Still College and the events that occur therein. It is published twice a month throughout the year and is mailed gratis to the entire profession.

The Log Book is edited by F. Don Baylor, a man who is certainly fitted for such a position both from his natural aptitudes and from his training in journalistic work. The college is fortunate in having one who can so ably edit the college paper.

Right here we want to mention Don as the man who is responsible for the art work in the Stillonian. We feel that he very materially aided us in making it the Annual that it is.

Guess Who?

The public at large is entitled to only nine guesses as to whom the honorable gentleman is at the left, almost concealed beneath his characteristic sun, rain or snow shade.

We finally managed to find him the morning of the eleventh of December, modestly hiding behind the usual hotel breakfast. It was then our pleasure and honor to pilot the gentleman around the city following which the student body listened with attention and appreciation to his talk which touched on problems of the association, personal experiences and good sound advice for the novice.

We hope he enjoyed the day. We want him to return, hat, smile, stories; the man we honor as our leader this year.
Modern colleges can rarely ever boast of perfect cooperation among their different fraternal organizations. In this respect D. M. S. C. O. is an exception to the rule. This wonderful spirit of cooperation has been brought about through the efforts and suggestions of the Panhellenic Council, which was founded September, 1924, for the purpose of bringing about better and more congenial fraternal relations and to unite more intimately the fraternities with the school life, both socially and professionally.

In order to accomplish its purpose, practical work meetings and social hours are held once a month, at the different fraternity houses. At these meetings many problems of interest to the student body, as well as those confronting the organizations concerned, are taken up, discussed, and a conscientious effort is made to meet the situations squarely—to adjust them to the best advantage of all concerned. Members of the faculty have joined with the fraternities and have made the practical work meetings instructive and profitable.

The most noteworthy accomplishment of the year was the enforcement of the "Anti-Smoke Law." By the united efforts of the college authorities, the fraternities, through the Panhellenic Council, and the cooperation of all the real live men in the college, smoking has finally been prohibited from our halls and is to be enjoyed in the basement only.

The present outlook for the Panhellenic Council is a promising one. The council bids fair to become a nucleus for all college life.

ATHLETICS
COACH SUTTON graduated from Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio, in 1915, having received his A. B. While in college he majored in chemistry. In 1916 he received his A. M. During his college days he was most interested in athletics, having participated in four years of football, three years of basketball, three years of baseball, and one year of track.

From 1917 to 1921 he was coach of athletics at Marietta High School. In 1921 he was coach of baseball, Marietta College. Since 1922 he has been director of athletics in Des Moines Still College. By hard work and strong determination he has placed the athletics of D. M. S. C. O. on a high plane. Coach Sutton is known throughout the field of athletics for his high ideals of sportsmanship. Having put this principle into practice, the athletics of D. M. S. C. O. have won their present recognition.
The Review of the Football Season

NEVER has Still College experienced so peculiar a season as that of 1925. First, Still played a very short schedule, which seems to be an ever-increasing difficulty; this rather destroyed the morale of the squad. Second, two of the six games played, came upon consecutive days in the same week. Third, the weather conditions for most of the games were terrible.

The season as a whole was a success, the team making a very creditable showing against two of the strongest teams in the state and breaking even in the number of games won and lost. New stars in the persons of Lillard, Dornbush, and Shaw have appeared upon Still's horizon, but other stars in the persons of Captain Myers, Hannan, and Benien, who have served faithfully and well for the last four years, have passed on, but are not forgotten. The line was exceptionally strong, being composed almost entirely of letter men.

On September 26th, Still opened its season with Parsons College and lost. The score: Still 0—Parsons 12. The backfield was composed entirely of new men; as a result the defense against passes and the offense were weak. At that, Still made twelve first downs to Parsons' five.

On October 10th Still lost to Buena Vista at Des Moines. Score: Still 0—Buena Vista 18. Still made twelve first downs to Buena Vista's one. Buena Vista had a strong, smart football team and allowed Still to do all of the offensive playing and converted breaks into points. This game marked the appearance of Stafford, Brown, and Davis in Still's lineup for the first time this season. They reported for practice after the Parsons game.

On October 23rd Still journeyed to Iowa Falls and defeated Ellsworth College, 14 to 6. Still scored both touchdowns in the first quarter and then rested upon their laurels, reserving their strength for the Graceland game the next day. Sheets and Platt were shifted into the backfield for this game and the offense was much improved.

On October 24th Still defeated Graceland College 13 to 0. The effect of the game, the day previous, was noticeable, and it was only in the last quarter that the offense started to run in high.

On November 7th Still journeyed to Kirksville, accompanied by at least half of the entire student body. The stage was set for a great battle, but the weather man interfered. The game was played in a blizzard of sleet and snow and like other contests played on that day, the score did not determine the comparative strength of the two teams. Still 6—Kirksville Osteopaths 6.

On November 21st Still journeyed to Sioux City and played Trinity to a 0—0 score. It was Homecoming for Trinity and was a great battle between two good defensive teams. Neither team could advance the ball consistently, each team had but one chance to score.

GERALD MYERS—Tackle

"Race" is one of the 67 from the Buckeye State. Under his leadership D. M. S. C. O. had a very successful season. We regret that he has but one more year to play.

A. B. GRAHAM—Center

"Ab" is Captain-elect for next fall. He will be in his glory when next football season opens, as it is a hard one. Ab is one of the most valuable in the stonewall defense.

PAUL BENIEN—Guard

"Tiny" is the small boy from Napoleon, Ohio. D. M. S. C. O. will miss him next year, as he was a star guard.

REGINALD PLATT—Quarterback

Platt was always ready to pilot the team through for a touchdown. The Purple and White are fortunate to have him for next season.
H. E. Hannan—Fullback

"Mike" has shown them all where to hit the line for a gain and touchdown. He will be out for the same position next year.

W. Walker—Tackle

As a tackle Wallie can't be beaten. He is in on every play. Stellar football is his brand.

Don Sheets—End

Don has been on the team for three years. Next fall he'll be on his toes ready to go—to knock 'em cold. Thank fortune, he's only a Junior.

Robert Ross—End

Bob has shown his stuff even though he is little. He comes from Elgin, Illinois, and "watch" is his middle name when playing on the end position.
JACK STAFFORD—Halfback

Jack is a product of Des Moines. When it comes to speed he can’t be beaten.

JOHNNY JONES—Guard

Johnny is always watching for the man with the ball on the defense. He plows a path for the runners on offense.

SAM LILLARD—Tackle

Sam came from Kirksville. He sure has proved he had the goods. We’re glad he has another year.

DAVID SHAW—Halfback

Shaw has shown a good brand of football. He is always ready to make a few yards on a line plunge. Every move counts with him.
DORN BUSH—Guard

His guarding is exceptional. His ability to stop the opponent is almost uncanny. He is another one of the 67 from Ohio.

DES MOINES GENERAL HOSPITAL
Des Moines General Hospital

The institution was founded in the late 90's by the Seventh Day Adventists, and operated as the Iowa Sanitarium until 1909, when it was purchased by the Des Moines Still College of Osteopathy. The name was then changed to the Des Moines General Hospital. The staff and administrative officers were composed of the faculty of the college of which it is a part.

In 1916, Dr. S. L. Taylor, who had been surgeon-in-chief for the previous five years, purchased the hospital, and formed a new corporation, consisting of himself, Dr. Lola Taylor and Dr. F. J. Treenery. Under this new regime many thousands of dollars were expended on repairs, improvements, additional equipment, such as the latest word in X-ray and clinical laboratories, and all that makes up a modern hospital. In the past years it has been the policy of the staff and officers to continue in this sustaining procedure. In addition to this, a complete case record system was installed, and persistently maintained. Selected men were added to the staff, each man being a specialist in his own particular line. Now the Taylor Clinic and the Des Moines General Hospital are known throughout Iowa and the surrounding states for the highly efficient work they are doing. The Des Moines General Hospital is rated as one of the best hospitals in the osteopathic profession.

The present scope of the Taylor Clinic and the Des Moines General Hospital is exceedingly broad. Every worthy field of therapeutic endeavor is covered. The diagnostic features are unexcelled. The clinical laboratories, under the able direction of Dr. Leonard B. Hurt, are producing results of which any hospital in the country has reason to be envious. Every phase of laboratory diagnosis is covered. Special equipment for blood and urine chemistry has been installed. Basal metabolism, al serum reactions, and tissue work are given special attention.

The X-ray department, under the direction of Dr. F. J. Treenery, a specialist in the field of roentgenology, is doing splendid work in both diagnostic and the therapeutic fields. The Des Moines General Hospital owns 60 milligrams of radium, and is prepared to make both surface and deep applications. The Des Moines General Hospital also has as fine and well equipped physiotherapy department as any hospital in the largest cities.

The upper classmen of Des Moines Still College of Osteopathy soon learn to appreciate the value of a hospital associated with the college. The surgical clinics are held at the hospital each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Senior students are privileged to attend regularly to witness and assist in all sorts of surgical operations. During the year of 1925, 1,850 patients were operated upon in the Minor Surgical Clinic. Those operations consisted of circumcisions, removal of small tumors, opening of abscesses, removal of turbinites, submucous resections, draining of sinuses, removal of polypi, adenoidectomies and tonsillectomies. In the Major Surgical Clinic students have witnessed nearly every type of major operation. The Senior students have wonderful opportunities in the department of obstetrics, in the clinical laboratory and in the department of X-ray. Treatments in such departments are conducted under the supervision of the doctors who conduct classes in said departments in the college.

The Des Moines General Hospital has always been more or less handicapped by its old building. In 1917 a plan was launched for a new building, but the war put a stop to such plans. Following the war, money and labor were at such a premium that it was inadvisable to start such a program. In January, 1923, a fund-raising plan was launched, and plans drawn for a $1,000,000 plant, the first unit of which will cost $350,000. The financial campaign is progressing rapidly and it is the hope of the management to start building operations in the near future. The new hospital will be the latest type in hospital planning and construction. The osteopathic profession will have an institution of which it can be truly proud.
Dr. Trenery has delved deeply into the mysteries of X-Radiance and Radium Therapy and has had phenomenal success. The Des Moines General Hospital is fortunate in having such a man for its Superintendent. D. M. S. C. O. is not only fortunate but is outstanding for having Dr. Trenery on the faculty. Mabel Blair, R. N., is the assistant to Dr. Trenery.
THE following is a classification of the various cases cared for at the Des Moines General Hospital for the fiscal year ending November 1, 1925. During the year there were 3,409 patients registered and taken care of at the hospital and out of that number there were only 22 deaths, a record of which any hospital might well be proud.

Clinics

The Des Moines Still College of Osteopathy has always enjoyed an enviable reputation throughout the profession for the excellence of its clinics. In a city such as Des Moines, the variety of cases that come before the clinic is unlimited, and the value gained from this experience is inestimable. The great advantage of highly developed clinical facilities such as are available at D. M. S. C. O. is that it gives the student an opportunity to work out the practical side of the didactic work he receives in the classroom under the personal supervision of the experienced clinician. As a result, he not only gains self-confidence but has a tangible working knowledge of symptomatology, diagnosis and treatment before he is placed "upon his own" in the field.

Patients are given a complete and thorough physical and laboratory examination and treatment is outlined before they are assigned to the student of the Senior and Junior A classes for treatment. A careful observation is made of every case and re-examinations are made as often as indicated.

A majority of the cases that come to the clinics for attention have previously tried with varying degrees of success all other forms of treatment, and in view of this fact, the results that the students have been able to obtain have been remarkable. During the past year over 25,000 clinical treatments were given.

Special clinics are conducted in the departments of Neurology, Surgery, Gynecology, Obstetrics, Pediatrics, and Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Of these specialized clinics the Obstetrical department is the most outstanding. Under the supervision of Dr. Robert Bachman, one of the foremost Obstetricians of the profession, over 153 cases were cared for during the past school year. The actual work of delivery and caring for patient is done by the student under direct supervision and when he has completed his requirements he has received experience that will prove invaluable in his future practice.

Laboratories

LABORATORY work in Des Moines Still College of Osteopathy has taken a marked upward trend within the past two years. As a matter of fact, the work has advanced to such a marked extent that it would be difficult for former graduates, not in close relationship to the school, to realize the vast improvement that has taken place. New microscopes have been purchased and more are to be purchased soon. New histological and pathological slides have been secured, new apparatus for performing tests, such as blood sugar examinations, gastric analyses and blood counts, are now available to the student to enable correct diagnosis of their clinic cases. Even animal experimentation has been introduced with favorable results.

The best single example of increased interest in laboratory work has been evinced by the student body itself, who, realizing the necessity for laboratory work as an aid in diagnosis, collected enough money to purchase in a single order more than $1,000.00 worth of laboratory equipment to act as a nucleus for their own future laboratories. Within this week a similar movement is on foot to place another order for like amount of equipment. Unless the students were getting the right caliber of work, the kind that demonstrates the value of laboratory work in their practice, the collection of such sums for the purchase of laboratory equipment would be beyond the dream of the greatest enthusiast.

Each and every field doctor is extended a cordial invitation to examine our laboratories and inquire into and see the work that is being performed by the students.

We firmly believe that the time has come when we must keep abreast of the march of science within our own laboratories or else perish for the lack of scientific truth.
Assembly

At the end of the third period each Friday, the student, whether Freshman or Senior, forgets about the next lesson, for it is assembly time. Each assembly program is under the supervision of one of our faculty members. Thomas Mann and R. B. Richardson have charge of the music. To our assembly leaders we are indebted for securing talented musicians and very able speakers of national reputation.

Some of our programs have been a source of much merriment and laughter, while others have brought inspiration and determination to the students. Dr. Nichols, of Boston, one of the most eminent diagnosticians of the profession, gave us an excellent address. Mr. Lemuel E. Gibson, local character analyst and vocational advisor, was one of the most interesting and instructive speakers who has ever appeared before the student body. No one who heard him will ever forget his interpretation of the old masterpiece by Hoffman, entitled "Christ in the Temple."

Programs that were also received with much acclaim were those that featured the Garber Trio, of local talent; the Music Masters, a local seven-piece orchestra; our own band, and last, but not least, our Black Symphony. We cannot forget Angus, his famous "Hey Waiyan Guitar" and his vocal selections. One of the most interesting programs, on the whole, was given by the Mid Year Graduating Class. It was diversified, each part an excellent program in itself—students of the Drake Conservatory of Music rendered very pleasing numbers and Rev. Nash afforded the students much merriment with his relation of his "Humorous Incidents Abroad." Several assemblies in the form of "Pep" meetings were held during the year. The enthusiasm and excitement when "Still" decided to go to Kirksville will be especially remembered. Nor can we forget those assemblies when we welcomed the new students to the halls of D. M. S. O.

Our assemblies have been interesting through the year. They have been the means of instilling into the students that certain intangible something called "School Spirit."

The Kirksville Trip

The biggest event of the college year, perhaps for several years previous, was the week-end party at Kirksville. It was an all college affair; everybody was invited—everybody wanted to go. Nobody could afford to go, yet most everybody went. Those who had money lent it—those who didn’t, borrowed it—those who couldn’t borrow money played the part of stowaways. Many a live piece of baggage might have been found on that train.

The train left Des Moines at 8:10. Everybody was happy. No one knew why exactly. The band was playing, the Wabash was bumping, the dice were rolling and all was well—until we came to Albia. This small station en route was an oasis in the desert—a filling station, as it were. The Biblical Feeding of the Four Thousand was nothing compared to the feeding of Still College from the Albia depot. Of course, each man was true to his training and helped himself. Such a number were fed at this time that three days were required to figure out the bill. However, the clerk was prompt and the bill was presented after we returned to Des Moines.

At 1:30 a.m. we arrived in Kirksville. While their band played their Alma Mater, we were checked over and a parking place found for the night. The Kirksville people were very gracious and their hospitality is not to be forgotten.

The next morning Jupiter Pluvius and the Kirksville gang, headed by their band, were out in glad array. The time was spent in running hither and yon. By noon the weather was terrific—undaunted we went to the game. Of the number who stayed until the game was over, many were cold, but few were frozen. When we heard the final score to be 6-6, we were all disappointed in that Chevie did not fulfill his promise to “carry the offissils off the field.”

The dinner hour was a welcome one. At this time the fraternities and sororities entertained. “After we dined, we woned; after we woned, everybody seemed to have something to say.”

The final entertainment was the dance down in the College Gym. It was well attended and greatly enjoyed.

The long wait in the hotel after the dance afforded everyone a chance to rest if a place could be found. The trip back to Des Moines was a weary one. Some slept the sleep of the dead. Most of us, however, had but a few winks during the night. At 8:10 a.m. we arrived home. Were we glad? No amount of permits, fireworks or anything else could have induced us to parade as we had done on our way to the station in the beginning of our trip. It was an event in the history of D. M. S. C. O. May history repeat!
Home-coming

LONG before the beginning of the school year, the date for the Second Annual Home-coming had been set. Everybody was looking forward to that time. Weeks before enthusiasm began to spread and soon it was at a high pitch. Those in charge were planning for a Home-coming that would far surpass the ones of previous years. Throughout the Osteopathic world the alumni were hearing of the plans, for they were being broadcast through the Log Book.

On October 16, 1925, the alumni gathered in the "Halls of Learning" and once again was heard, "It sure is great to be back"—so the thrill of being at old D. M. S. C. O. prevailed. Once again all joined in the old songs and yells. Fraternity and Sorority luncheons in honor of the returned alumni occupied the noon hour, where new acquaintances were made and old friendships renewed.

One-thirty found the scene of action to be the Western League Park, where the football team played the strong aggregation from Buena Vista. The boys played stellar football throughout the game, outplaying Buena Vista College in every play. Between the halves, the Freshmen and Sophomores engaged in the annual pushball contest, which was hotly contested. It was not until the last few minutes that the Freshmen in Herculean effort started the ball on its way to victory.

Time passed and at 6:30 all were gathered round the festive board in the Florentine Room of the Hotel Savery III, and there began the Second Annual Home-coming Banquet, which was a most excellent one. Dr. Lola Taylor, Dr. J. P. Schwartz and others gave talks that were very appropriate for an evening of such an occasion.

But this was not all, for as soon as the tables were cleared away the orchestra started to play the kind of music that makes one wish to dance. The evening was concluded but not until the orchestra played the last waltz and then only because of the lateness of the hour.

Saturday evening found most of the alumni still in Des Moines keeping step to the music of various orchestras. Late Sunday the alumni departed to various parts of the state filled with a new spirit. Thus ended the Second Annual Home-coming which is destined to become one of the most beloved traditions of D. M. S. C. O.
Relays

The Relays in the Spring of '25 will not be forgotten very soon. The weather man seemed to be bucking the whole affair, but with a determination on the part of those concerned the meet was held. Coach Sutton and his assistants served as the officials. The most important event was the race in which the ownership of the Sigma Sigma Phi trophy was to be decided for the coming year. The three fraternities were represented thusly: Atlas Club—Damm 100 yards, Brinkman 220, Wise 440, Worthman 880. Phi Sigma Gamma—Stafford 100, McWilliams 220, Davis 440, Schaeffer 880. The winner of the event was the Iota Tau Sigma team, which was made up of the following men: Wadkins 100, Loghry 220, C. Jones 440, and Marlow 880.

The winning class team was the Sophomores. In this event each man ran 100 yards. The men who made up the winning team are as follows: William Russell, John Wadkins, Max Friend and Laurence Loghry.

Frosh--Soph Activities

The annual Frosh-Soph activities were started soon after the fall semester of school opened. One morning the Sophomores arrived at school to find the windows and blackboards "whitewashed" with various numerals and quotations that were not to their liking. In order to retaliate, to show the Freshmen their place and their superiors, they invited, yea, more—prevailed upon the Freshmen to participate in a long ride. Dawn found some of the Freshman homeward bound—tired, but resolved that they would get revenge.

The night before the annual pushball contest the Freshman class congregated at the West High Stadium. To this place many of the reluctant Sophomores were brought, at which time the Frosh returned the ride of the previous week. The highly elated Freshmen were not completely disbanded when suddenly they were swooped down upon by the Sophomores who had in some way summoned the rest of their class. Again the Freshmen were the recipients of free transportation.

This only added to the determination of the Frosh, which fact was well shown in the pushball contest between the halves of the Home-coming football game. It was at this time they proved themselves beyond a doubt when they took the Sophomores over for the count and victory. The activities came to an end and the bond of friendship was sealed.

First Osteopathic Booth at Iowa State Fair

Back in the far corner of "Education Alley," back where their pennants were the first in sight from the door, where the direct fiery rays of the sun never reached, where every vagrant breeze seemed to search out the cheesecloth canopy and where chirpy tunes from the stirring bands of the grandstand filtered through, here the Iowa Osteopaths arranged their booth at Iowa State Fair. The monitor at the inception of a tradition which must become as fixed as 98° weather, sleeve garters, sun-browned lads and buxom lasses at the state fair, suggests for the benefit of all coming monitors, the advisability of a 99-year lease on the place. Only those who did not see it can deny her judgment. Without the slightest effort, two-thirds of the booth was visible to any comer. With the suitable arrangement of pennant, spinous, photographic and poster details it was more than visible, it was arresting. Thanks to the activity of the Osteopathic women of Iowa, more people since "The Fair" have heard about Osteopathy than had heard of John the Baptist before. I am not exaggerating. Not much.

As a matter of fact, the public was interested. Myriads of questions were answered and tons of literature were given away. The motto which compared the number of muscles used in smiling to those required for a frown, and ending with an admonition to rest your face, was a go-getter. Many a second and more interested glance took in the booth after reading the motto card. Concerning them we must say, "a fine time was enjoyed by all," especially those who got the point. Those who didn't wouldn't understand about Osteopathy, anyway.

It was evident from watching the crowds, day by day, that it is the specific which appeals. The slightest demonstration on Dr. Halladay's articulated spine—(I mean to say, er—um—we hope our meaning is understood) would draw questions and a crowd. Of course, to many it recalled an especially lurid murder of a few weeks previous. Nevertheless, they went away with something to talk about and something to tell about. And the day a lad from a near-by booth put himself in the hands of Doctor Caldwell for headache relief, the enthusiasm of the mobs knew no bounds. A dignified clinical demonstration of some of the simpler technique with a direct, scientific discussion of what it was to accomplish and why, might not be professional ethics in such a place, but it would do much to educate in a new science, a public, the Osteopaths could profit well by having educated.

Without exception, every Osteopath and everyone interested in the profession stopped to comment favorably upon the showing made by the first Osteopathic booth to appear at Iowa State Fair. And practically all suggestions for another year boiled down to this: let the information—literary, poster and demonstrated—be practical and applicable to the needs of the people who will see and hear it.

Social Year

IN EVERY school year there are events that stand out distinctly in our memories. Lost in the far-away future, we might forget the happy social activities, we must record a few. There were several parties that took place last spring, too late for Stillonian publication. They deserve a place in the events of the school year, so will be mentioned here.

In the early part of May, Dr. Halladay's mother was honor guest at a surprise party, which was given by the women of the college. Dr. Halladay entertained the guests by relating incidents occurring in the early days of Osteopathy.

The first meeting of the Panhellenic Council was held at the Phi Sigma Gamma house on Tuesday evening, April 21st. Dr. J. P. Schwartz gave a talk which was of a very interesting and beneficial nature. The talk was followed by a smoker.

Mrs. C. W. Johnson and her daughter, Ava, entertained at an afternoon tea Sunday, May 24th, in honor of the girls who were graduating. A most enjoyable time was spent, as is always the case when one visits with the Johnsons.

The annual Senior Banquet was held at Lemley Tea Room on the evening of May 27th. After the banquet a number of short talks were given by the different guests. Music was furnished by Mrs. Lemley's orchestra.

With the coming of summer the activities seem to wane. The few students who remained felt that some form of recreation was needed, therefore the theater party at the Orpheum and supper at the Twentieth Century Cafe. This was one of the few summer revels.

The opener of the college social events was held in the Auditorium on Saturday evening, October 3rd, in the form of a reception for the Freshman class. As usual, the new students and old were there en masse to take part in the activities of the evening.

The Second Home-coming Banquet and Dance was held at the Hotel Savoy III in the Florentine room. After a most excellent banquet, at which Dr. Lola Taylor, Dr. J. P. Schwartz and others spoke, the hall was cleared and the dancing began. All in all, the event was highly successful, and is well on its way to becoming an established custom.

On Tuesday evening, November 3rd, the Freshman "A" class, the single members and the married ones with their wives, were entertained by Lillian B. Tracey at 1628 Beaver Avenue. Pulling taffy was a feature of the evening.

The Masonic Club of the college were the sponsors of the "All College" dance that was held at the Grant Club on the evening of November 20th. It was a perfect circle of good time and the music was of the best.

The first Panhellenic party of the year was held at the Hotel Commodore, November 13th. The Melrose Aces supplied the music for the affair.
The annual Faculty Banquet to the graduating Seniors was held at Younkers Tea Room on Wednesday evening, January 20th. Dr. C. W. Johnson was toastmaster. The evening was one long to be remembered by the Seniors, who realized with regret that it was their last college banquet.

The members of the Junior class were entertained by Dr. Spring and his wife at their home Friday evening, January 22d. For some years it has been the custom of the doctor to give the "Spring Party" and every Junior looks forward to this event as the Seniors look back to it with many pleasant memories.

The mid-year Freshmen and new students were the guests of honor at the Freshmen reception given at the college on Friday evening, February 19th. The auditorium was tastefully decorated in the college colors and the Melrose Aces furnished the music for the occasion.

Thursday evening, April 29th, the Women of D. M. S. C. O. enjoyed a social evening at the College. Dr. Mary Golden spoke to the girls. Light refreshments were served. All declared the evening a great success and one to be remembered.

Saturday, May 1st, the Freshmen "B" girls entertained the graduating Senior girls at a luncheon at Harris-Emery's tea room.

Saturday, May 1st, the Junior class entertained the Senior class at a dance, given in their honor at the Hoyt Sherman Place.

Throughout the year the fraternity and sorority parties stand out with great prominence. There has been more social dates on the calendar of D. M. S. C. O. during the past year than ever before. Such a fact proves that D. M. S. C. O. is a wide-awake institution.

Message to Alumni

Dear Alumni:

The success of the Stillonian of ’25 made us courageous for the task we have just completed. We present the Stillonian of ’26—as it is. If it meets with your approval we are glad—if it does not, criticize constructively for the Stillonian of ’27.

If the Stillonian shall have aroused in you interest for the old school, your Alma Mater, it shall have fulfilled its purpose.

The Staff.

We thank you
A guide showing a lady through the Zoo paused before a kangaroo and told her it was a native of Australia.

"Heavens!" she shrieked. "Me sister married one of them things."

Farmer (to train caller)—"What do you do?"
Train Caller—"I call trains."
Farmer—"Well, call me one. I'm in a hurry."

"That fellow gets the cold shoulder every time he comes in here."
"Who's that?"
"The iceman."

"I'm beginning to miss my husband," said Mrs. Casey as the rolling pin grazed her husband's head and hit the wall.

More brains (at piano recital)—"What is that charming thing he is playing?"
Less Brains—"A piano y' dub."

The Patient—"I can't find my wife anywhere. What shall I do?"
Rose Mary—"Just start talking to our pretty coeds over there."

THE FRAT PIN
He wore his college frat pin
In honor of his frat.
He wore his college frat pin
Just southward of his heart
And vowed that from that resting place
That pin should ne'er depart.
Years that passed still found him
Ever firm and standing pat,
Still wearing his college frat pin,
In honor of his frat.

One day two eyes confused him,
His high resolve took chase,
A soft voice coaxed the frat pin
From its old abiding place.
They're now living in a little bungalow
With "WELCOME!" on the mat,
And the frat pin fastens baby's clothes
In honor of the frat.

LUCKY FOR JOHNNIE
Teacher asked her class if they could compose a rhyme using the word "Nellie." Johnny Jones, being called upon arose much embarrassed:
"There was a pretty little girl named Nellie,
Who fell in the water and wet her little feet.
"Why, Johnnie, that doesn't rhyme."
"I know it doesn't. The water wasn't deep enough."

A BIG JOB
Fond Parent—"What is worrying you, my son?"
Willie—"I was just wondering how many legs you gotta pull off a centipede to make him limp."

ORNITHOLOGY OR SOMETHING?
Teacher (to class in Natural History)—"What kind of birds are most frequently kept in captivity?"
"Jail birds," volunteered Tommy.

ESTHETIC? SURE MIKE
Two fair munition workers were discussing their personal affairs.
"Got a chap yet, Liz?" inquired one.
"Yes, and he's a regular toff. He's manager at—"
"You don't say so! Why, they tell me he's real refined."
"Rather! Why, he took me to a restaurant last week, and when we had coffee he poured it into a saucer to cool it, but he didn't blow it like common people would—he fanned it with his hat!"

OR WORDS TO THAT EFFECT
"Ethel, said the bishop, 'you seem to be a bright little girl; can you repeat a verse from the Bible?"
"'I'll say I can."
"'Well, my dear, let us have it."
"'The Lord is my shepherd—I should worry."

Mrs. Kiddlet—Children! What is all this noise about?
Little Jamie—We've had gran'pa and Uncle Henry locked up in the cupboard for an hour, an' when they get a little angrier I'm going to play going into the lion's cage.—Walthamstow Guardian.

"Your speedometer shows you have gone twenty-five thousand miles. Been taking some long tours?"
"No, the five thousand is the distance I have covered in going back and forth to the office, and the other twenty thousand the distance I have covered looking for parking places."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Ole Olson had been working as an engine wiper, and his boss, a thrifty man, had been coaching him for promotion to fireman with such advice as:
"Now, Ole, don't waste a drop of oil—that costs money. And don't waste the waste, either—that's getting expensive too."

When Ole went up to be questioned on his eligibility for an engineman, he was asked:
Suppose you are on your engine on a single track. You go around a curve, and you see rushing toward you an express. What would you do?"
To which Ole replied:
"I grab the oil-can; I grab the waste—and I yump."—Arkansas Utility News.
DEUCEDLY CLEVER

A chevalier was walking up and down the platform of a country railroad junction, trying to see a car that had a vacant seat. He didn't find it, and, assuming an official air, he walked up to the last car and announced in stentorian tones:

"All out here; this car isn't going."

There were exclamations low and deep from the occupants of the car, but they all piled out and made their way to cars ahead. The smile on the young man's face increased as he took possession of a seat and appropriated another for his luggage.

"Ah," he murmured, "it's a grand thing to be born clever! Now I wish they'd start."

By and by the station master put his head in at the door: "Are you the smart young man who said this car wasn't going?"

"Yes," said the chevy, smiling.

"Well," said the station master, with a grin also, "it isn't. The brakeman heard what you said and he uncoupled it. He thought you were a director."

THE GREAT AMERICAN FESTIVAL

Pat was helping the gardener on a gentleman's place and, observing a shallow stone basin containing water, he inquired what it was for.

"That," said the gardener, "is a bird bath,"

"Don't ye be foolin’ me," grinned Pat. "What is it?"

"A bird bath, I tell you. Why do you doubt it?"

"Because I don't believe there's a bird alive that can tell Saturday night from any other."

AND THEN THE STORM

Modiste—Really, madam, this gown makes an entirely different woman out of you.

Dr. Fishleigh—Take it, Betty—never mind the price!
Mother—Pet, what are you thankful for today?
Pet—Oh, I'm thankful daddy gave me $5 when I didn't see him kiss nurse.—Vanderbilt Masquerader.

"When he fell out of the window did he hurt himself much?"
"No, he had on his light fall overcoat."—Brown Jug.

He—Shall we walk?
She—it's all the same to me.
"Yes, I've noticed that."—Allegheny Alligator.

"What did he mean by putting 'Florida Love' at the end of his letter?"
"Oh, that's just lots and lots of it.—Alabama Rammer Jammer.

One Neighbor—Your dog howled all night.
Another Ditto—That's a sign of death. Whose, I wonder?
"Your dog's, if he howls again tonight."—Answers.

"So you claim your girl don't neck?"
"That's what I said. My girl is a lady. She's the paramour of decency."
"And what did she do when you tried to neck her?"
"She hit me over the head with a bottle of Scotch and told me to get the hell out of her house."—Gettysburg Cannon Bawl.

BIG HEARTED
Prisoner—This is the end! I go to the electric chair tomorrow.
Sweetheart—Don't give up all hope yet, dear. I've brought you a pair of shock absorbers.—Oregon Orange Owl.

SAVED

The majority of men who have built up great fortunes, owe their success primarily to thrift. Lack of thrift has caused more financial failures than anything else. How many men there are today who might have become wealthy had they only known how to save money.

Ralph Davis—Mamma, were you at home when I was born?
Mother—No, darling, I was at grandma's in the country.
Ralph—Wasn't you awfully surprised when you heard about it?

DIFFICULT PROBLEM SOLVED
Gladieux—What ye want?
Peelee Lee—Advice. My wife's mother is soon to visit us and I don't know how to address her. I don't like to call her "Mother-in-law" on account of the comic column jokes on that name, and somehow there's a certain sacredness about "Mother" that makes me hesitate to apply it to anyone but my own.

Gladieux—Well, I can tell you of my own experience. The first year we were married, I addressed my wife's mother as "Say;" after that we called her "Grandma."

Cowen—Sir, do you realize to whom you are speaking? I am the daughter of an English peer.

Doc Green—Not so fast. I am the son of an American Doc.

GOAT GETS AN EARFUL
A man "butted in" at a waiting line before the railroad ticket window at New York, and the men who were in a hurry glowered.
"I want a ticket for Boston," said the man, and put 50 cents under the wicket.
"You can't go to Boston for 50 cents," returned the ticket seller.
"Well, then," asked the man, "where can I go for 50 cents?"
And each of the fourteen men in that waiting room told him where he could go.
