DEDICATION '77

Herbert Rosen D.O.

"Dedication" is a most appropriate word when describing Dr. Rosen. His sincere desire to teach and learn spills out into our lecture halls and labs almost daily. "Rosen's" many rules and methods exemplify (key word) his practical straightforward way of teaching.
The Rosen family and Dr. Rosen being hooded upon receiving his FACGP fellowship in November of 1975.
The family practitioner at home in his den which is a virtual museum full of sculpture, guns, and stuffed game. Dr. Rosen is an avid sportsman and collector in his spare time.

TO THE CLASS OF 1977:

You are about to begin your osteopathic medical careers. As physicians, I know we shall be very proud of you. You have learned the required information and have performed very creditably in both the classroom and clinical areas where your knowledge was tested.

I have no concern for what you know. My concern is that you should and will recognize what you do not know. No institution can teach all that a physician must know in the pre-doctoral program. It is therefore important for every physician to understand that the hallmark of a good doctor is to recognize his limitations and to turn to colleagues for special expertise and guidance when the occasion demands. When you mature to the point that you are able to so conduct yourselves, you will become that very special person in whom the ego, which is so much a part of being a physician who understands that people depend upon him for their well-being, blends with humility as he is constantly overwhelmed by the tremendous amount of knowledge which he has yet to learn.

You will receive the Degree of Doctor of Osteopathy at Commencement Exercises. It is an interesting term because the word "commencement" really means a beginning. It is a beginning in many ways. It is the beginning of learning that much of the theory which should work often confounds you in practice. It is also the beginning of the time when you learn that much of the knowledge, which made you proficient to receive your professional degree, will lose its validity in a short period of time. Therefore, for the rest of your lives, you must be constant students if you are to do your jobs effectively.

When you came to this college, you were a select body of young people chosen from several thousand applicants because we thought you had special qualities. As you leave us, we feel equally proud because we believe our choice was vindicated.

You, the newest alumni of this college, will always have a very important place in my heart. I have enjoyed watching the process in which you matured and became physicians. I look forward with greater anticipation to observing you so perform that you will bring credit to yourself and honor to the College of Osteopathic Medicine and Surgery, which educated you to become physicians.

My congratulations and prayers for your success go with you this day. With all of the faculty, I hope you will return to visit us often. I hope you will always think of us as your intellectual home because you are now a part of that very special group of osteopathic physicians -- "COMS Graduates".

Sincerely,

[Signature]

Kent Miller, one of four fellows, lectures during the lab.
On October 21 1976 Dr. Byron Laycock left his address on the street of life, never to return. This passing left a great void on the streets of life for me and for many who knew him. His departure will be felt as a great empty space for the osteopathic profession. He was one of the few who could give me a fine osteopathic treatment, he could ablate the pain in my back and head, and he could teach me and did teach me so much about the human body and real wholistic medicine.

Byron was a dedicated and magnificent teacher. He was a gentle teacher—that is, he didn't ramrod, frighten, or demand that you learn osteopathic principles. He set it before you like a benevolent parent: If you wished to partake of this knowledge, he would help you; if you didn't, he would smile and let you quietly go along your ignorant path. This character of Dr. Laycock's teaching has caused many to feel he was not a great teacher. This writer feels this quality is what made Byron Laycock a good teacher. I misunderstood his character at one time in my life and overlooked all that he knew and made available to me and my classmates. I was wise enough to see the folly in my ways, and Dr. Laycock then took me when I expressed an interest and made a great student of the autonomic nervous system, of manipulation, and of osteopathic principles, not as a religion, but as a system and concept of helping people to have their bodies help them. I am a better physician because this man touched and nourished my education, as he did for so many others who spent time in Des Moines.

This was truly a rich, dedicated, and valuable osteopathic teacher, physician, and clinician. He was a man of great knowledge if you would take the time to uncover it. He knew basic sciences as few clinicians ever know. He knew neurology and the autonomic nervous system. He knew much and he did not show it off. He was modest and covert with this rare ability and possession. He gave of it freely, if only you and I were wise enough and sensitive enough to see it and ask for it. He was truly a great and unique teacher. He was my first medical school teacher to provide us with a book—his book. That, too, was a proud moment from a great teacher to an insecure student in a minority system.

Byron Laycock was a fine and warm human being. If the day and events were bad, he always had a sympathetic ear and would listen and advise. He was always good for a casual and comfortable conversation with nothing to share but friendship. He would always be open to an intense intellectual debate and academic rap session to explore new ways to improve health care or maybe the world. He was, above all, always there, always open, and always sharing. He was a friend to all at Des Moines and about the profession. He was ripped off terribly many times in his life but he never bore scars of hate or bitterness pocked with treachery. He took the good and bad from life and walked tall and straight and kindly among us on the avenues of life. The avenues seem so different, now that I know he no longer walks here. That walk was so unique, positive, and warm. I miss him just thinking about him.

Byron was a sophisticated, scholarly, gentlemanly human being. He had a favorite statement: "If you see someone without a smile today, give him one of yours." Byron loved this, but more important he lived it. He gave to me many smiles; they were as big as he was, they were as real as he was and filled with kindness and warmth as he was. I and so many of us from Des Moines and the osteopathic profession will miss the smile, the person, the man. Farewell, big friend.

SUBJECT: Donation of Art Work by the Alumina Association

There has come to my attention an unfortunate lack of appreciation for the work of art recently placed in the auditorium by the Alumina Association. This work was commissioned to complement the pseudo-functional neo-realist motif of the auditorium, and despite its controversial nature is considered too important and valuable a statement to be removed at the whish of a few students. I am certain that within a few years "Leaning Ladder with Scaffold" will have gained the appreciation of each of you. In the meantime you may be assured that I will do everything within my power to improve the video image for those of you who sit on the east side of the auditorium.

WE LOVE YOU DR. SPEVAK

DR. JACK SPEVAK, WE LOVE YOU.
Dr. Spevak, after many years of dedicated service has, of this year, decided to retire from his private practice and from his full time lecture schedule. He will be missed by all who knew him. Dr. Spevak is a very special man. His love for his "Kids" is surpassed only by their love for him. Everything he does or says radiates with his supreme love and devotion, to "the Little People". His lectures were an inspiration, and his guidance in the hospital rotation will be long remembered. We who knew him, love him.
This is what happens to a D.O. who wants to be a R.D. and goes M.D.

Heart Disease

Dr. E. D. Alls
Polk City Family Practice

Much attention has been given to the topic of heart attacks, as one in every three men and one in every five women will have one at some time in his or her lifetime. The heart muscle has no ability to regenerate if it is completely destroyed by a heart attack. Therefore, it is important to take steps to prevent heart disease and keep your heart healthy.

Polk City is a member of the American Heart Association, and efforts are being made to promote heart health in the community. Regular exercise, a healthy diet, and not smoking are all important factors in keeping your heart healthy.

WHICH HOSPITAL WILL YOU CHOOSE?

Take a look at Northwest General
Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Located in Milwaukee's urban residential section, Northwest General is accredited by the AOA Committee on Hospitals. In the ten years since our doors first opened, we've grown considerably — to become Wisconsin's largest osteopathic hospital. Over 75 physicians, representing 15 specialty fields, and close to 500 employees now serve the 171-bed hospital ... and opportunities to learn are abundant. Over 15,000 patients each year come to Northwest General's 24-hour Emergency Room service. In addition, we're within a ten mile radius of a dozen hospitals and the Medical College of Wisconsin, offering seminars and programs open to all Milwaukee physicians.

 searching for the perfect place to live and practice? Then, consider Mesa in Arizona's beautiful Valley of the Sun.

Here is a growing community of 90,000 near metropolitan Phoenix with year round sunshine and all the amenities of relaxed desert resort living. Here is the good outdoor life of golf, tennis, boating, skiing, fishing, horseback riding. Here are gourmet restaurants and theater and symphony and big league sports. Here is the land of spectacular sunsets and giant cacti and dramatic mountains and picturesque desert. Here is the friendly smile, the warm handshake, genuine western hospitality at its very best.

For the osteopathic General Practitioner who seeks Mesa to establish his practice there is the fully accredited 175-bed Mesa General Hospital. The community needs General Practitioners to keep pace with accelerating population growth which is expected to reach 150,000 by 1980. Already there are more than 100 manufacturing facilities employing thousands of residents. The hospital will guarantee substantial gross professional billings for the first year and lend financial assistance in setting up and equipping an office.

WEDNESDAY JUNE 1, 1977
Reflecting back over the two years during which I have been associated with the production of the Pacemaker it is a pleasure to recall our many accomplishments. The creation of the Pacemaker darkroom has greatly expanded the services, in the way of pictures, which can now be offered to organizations and students. Many students have enjoyed learning how to "print their own" and thanks goes to James Dudley Sr. for his help in making the darkroom a reality.

The color graduation portraits offered to second year students is another big project and its success this year was do mostly to "Whitey" Ilvess’ efforts. Thanks also to Whitey for his help in this project, for the preparation of the Class of '78 color composite, and for the color photograph appearing on the endsheets of the yearbook.

The assistance of class editors Jim Dolney and Kevin Arnold along with the endless help of treasurer Ray Sjerven greatly eased the burden associated with producing a yearbook of such size and quality which we have. Further thanks goes to them and to everyone else involved, all the help we received no matter how slight was greatly appreciated. Completing the Pacemaker was a challenge that could not have been met without these combined efforts. Both the challenge and the opportunity to work with so many people on this production will be missed by me.

We are all proud of the Pacemaker 77 and even though you might not be pictured too often, we hope that you will enjoy recalling your many friends, the good times, and the educational experience had here at COMS.

Sincerely,

Michael D. Hagues
Editor - Pacemaker 77
