For his leadership and service to Iowa and Des Moines University, Governor Terry E. Branstad will be honored at the University’s annual Glanton Minority Scholarship Fund Dinner on Oct. 8. The University is assembling a collection of messages, stories and images from friends and supporters, which will be presented to him at the dinner in a keepsake book. Be part of this special gift that he will cherish for years to come!

DMU’s Glanton Minority Scholarship Fund supports minority students, under-represented in health care, who go on to become highly competent, compassionate health care providers and leaders. Governor Branstad established the fund in 2004, when he was president of DMU, and continues to champion its purpose.
